Dear Class of 2025,

We hope these days away from classes serve as an opportunity for you to find what you need most.

We will miss you and look forward to welcoming you in a few days. Until then, remember what we’ve encouraged you to consider:

how much you’ve grown in these short few weeks of the semester. And, imagine the wonders of what might come next!

You don’t have to figure it out alone.

Join the Center for University Advising, Student Government, and the Center for Career Development to explore what’s next.

Exploration Week begins with the Exploration Kickoff Fair - a chance to speak with faculty and students, compare possible majors and minors, and create connections with centers and research teams.

STAY IN TOUCH!

- Follow us on Instagram!
- Follow us on Twitter!
- Follow us on LinkedIn!

EXPLORATION WEEK NOVEMBER 1 - 5

Follow us on Instagram for stories of student disconnection.
Disconnected by Student Government!

Follow us on Instagram for news of Student Government!

1-Credit Courses Begin on Oct. 25 - but you can still sign up!

Find these courses (and more 1-credit courses) in Class Search!

FYS 10422: Introduction to Global Arts & Identity

This course (TTh 12:30pm-1:45pm, Oct. 25 - Dec. 7) is designed to introduce students to the arts as a sophisticated means of communicating personal and social values and understandings of identity. Both self-created and imposed from without, identity is a major concern of artistic disciplines from across the globe. Topics covered will include selected aspects of Polynesian, Native American and other American arts!

KSGA 20490 Policy Lab: Electoral Integrity in Comparative Perspective

For the first time this Fall, the Keough School is offering a policy lab designed for first-year students. The Policy Lab (MW 5:05-6:20pm, Oct. 25 – Nov. 29) will focus on the challenges policymakers face when designing electoral legislation, maximizing civic rights without compromising certainty.

And, learn more about the course’s leader, Professor Julio Juárez Gámiz below!

LETS TAKE THE NEXT STEPS TOGETHER.